

europa Spa

SPECIAL EDITION

Issue 77 | August/September 2020

The essential resource for spa business and wellness hospitality

Looking to the future

We celebrate the reopening of spas

Chenot Palace Weggis debuts in holistic Alpine harmony

Dr George Gaitanos

Switzerland: The preventative health and wellness specialist Chenot Group has unveiled its flagship property, the Chenot Palace Weggis.

Overlooking Lake Lucerne on the site of the carefully renovated Park Hotel Weggis, each of the retreat's 97 luxury bedrooms and suites offers secluded balconies or terraces.

Designed by specialist wellness architect Davide Macullo and his team, the new 20,000sqm retreat is intended to seamlessly coexist with its surroundings and echo the tranquility of its Alpine location.

Locally-sourced materials and traditional Swiss building techniques have been used throughout the construction to preserve the heritage and character of the original property.

A 5,000sqm health spa offers the Chenot Group's holistic and personalised programmes for detoxing, energising and resetting the body and mind. Hand-carved ceilings throughout the spa are complemented by natural light and a neutral palette, with communal areas evoking scenes of forests, roots, water and fire.

Treatment beds were supplied by IONTO with a cryochamber from Zimmer Medizintechnik.

Hydro-aroma bathtubs were supplied by Unbescheiden and a comprehensive gym offering was created in collaboration with Technogym.

In addition to some 53 treatment rooms, the spa features a 20m indoor pool that is made from natural Alpine stone, which reflects the views of Lake Lucerne and its mountain backdrop to create the sensation of swimming in a freshwater lake.

Dr George Gaitanos, scientific director and chief operating officer of Chenot Group, said: "Chenot Palace Weggis is dedicated to health and wellness, and is our most advanced facility yet."

"It's a destination in itself where every space works in harmony – from the tranquil location and the spa to the guest bedrooms and restaurants – to provide an overall transformational journey to detox, energise and increase the performance of the body and mind."

www.chenotpallaceweggis.com